

editor's notes

shot by brynlea howell

This magazine means a lot to me. It's my final project for my first year of college. I'm proud of myself for getting this far. I never really thought that I would. After we were assigned this, I was looking through old magazines for inspiration and I came across an old Seventeen magazine. It made me so mad. It being marketed towards teenage girls, it was sending them the wrong message. Telling little girls that all they need to care about is their looks and whether boys like them or not. This is simply not the case. There are far better things to care about in this life. This magazine is focused on some things that I am interested in as a nineteen year old girl. Not boys and make-up.

nineteen magazine